WILLY AMERICAS MAR 1971

The run went off without a hitch and then it was back to Maracas where the parked Carib truck was a welcome sight.

Friday..... I never professed to be able to do a fast down down, so how I got caught up in that competition I don't know. The rest is history, serves Puke Boy, right for making me come up on stage.

On On to Monday..... Boy was I looking forward to Tobago, IAH would be over and I could really wind down. It was a great! One moment I remember clearly was, just after the run on Pigeon Point Beach this really short, mustachioed guy with an attitude and a Maryland jersey, walks up to me and says "Where's the water?", so I says "There's water in the tap or on sale at the bar. We only catered for beers today." Obviously annoyed he walks away and says "Shoulda fucking know!"

What can I say, can't please em all.

All in all, I had a great time. Would I do it again? Let me sleep on it and I'll get back to you in the morning. For your information, 572 cases of beer were drank for IAH '97. This is on Friday, Saturday and Sunday on the buses, at the run sites and at the On On. The figure does not include the prelewd, the wind down and the countless beers drank at the Pelican and other bars and pubs.

On! On! To Pittsburgh in '99.

INTRO '97 (as seen by Forklift)

My IAH Experience..... Good? Bad? You be the judge

How the hell did I get on this fucking committee in the first place?.... well that's not too hard to answer.... just happened to be one of five dumb assholes, out of twelve that went to Orlando in '95, who were willing to undergo two years of planning and preparation for the Western Hemisphere's premiere Hashing event.

It was when our monthly meetings turned into weekly meetings that I thought "Hey, we're actually going to host this thing....SHIT..... What am I supposed to do again?"

The stress, the pressure, the beer consumption,.... and this was just the meetings. Actually, the meetings were great, I for one, had no problems going by Roy once a week to drink his beers and be entertained by his charisma and charm..... Hah!

The real entertainment though was on the Internet. Here are some quotes that had us ROTFL (for you non - as Roy would put it - Internet Freaks, that means Rolling on the Floor Laughing).

"My doctor told me that the water is so bad that I shouldn't even open my mouth in the shower."
"Don't pee in the rivers, there's a parasite that is attracted by the pee and swims up your dick hole."

"What the fuck does this church going, banana republic know about hashing anyway?"

I guess that IAH really started for me, on the Monday before. I passed by the Rugby Club to have a beer and then a few of us moved on to the Pelican to hook up with the Okinawa contingent who were due in that night. Well, one thing led to another and the next thing I knew, it was three o'clock in the morning and myself and some foreign hashers I had never met before in my life before were "liming" outside Smokey and Bunty in St. James. Generally they were a nice bunch of guys, but these fuckers didn't have work the next day. I should have realized that the night would degenerate earlier on when Suckin' up Spouse dived across our table clearing about 2 cases worth of empty bottles in the process. Glass was everywhere, there was even some bleeding from minor splinter injuries. Anyway, Spouse was somewhat quiet for the rest of the night and the week come to think of it.

Wednesday night was one jamming party in the Pelican and prepared the early arrivals for the weekend to come.

I was in charge of the beer, so as Friday came along, it was my turn to worry. Would the beer arrive on time?... and would we have enough? Quantity would never be a problem, that is unless these hashers were going to average a case each per night..... possible, but not likely. That left arriving on time and we were tested that first day. It all worked out though, the beer was there and it was cold by the time the first runners came in.

Left for home Friday about midnight to get up at 5.00 a.m. to set our run up at Marianne. Cold and stale drunk, Deano, Todd and myself drove up to Avocat Village along the Marianne, with a stop at Maracas for the hair of the dog.

Walking in the Marianne at 7.00 a.m. on a cold morning is certainly not a pleasant experience. Apart from hardening the nipples and shriveling the dick, it clears the head and jolts the senses and makes a bottle of rum a welcome companion.

INTERAM 1987

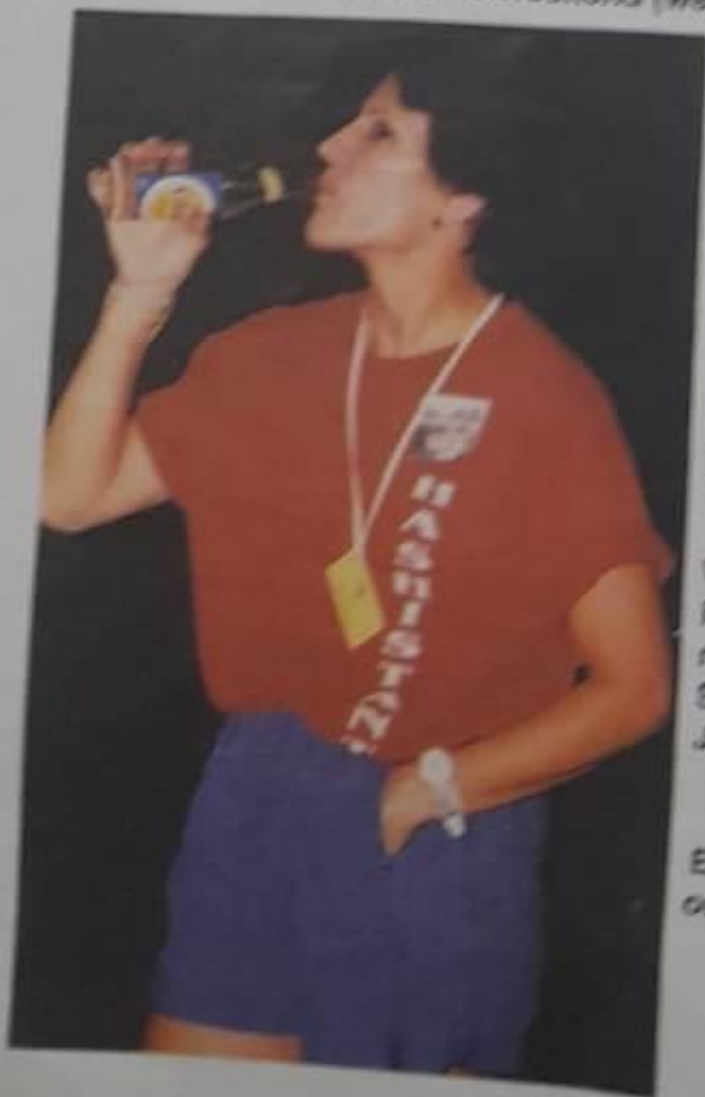

What a great "time" I thought when I heard the Port of Spain Hashers were off to Orlando, could we in! Then I heard the reason for the calling another matter. We'll never win the bid, so it's go anyway.

After the first night we tried talking Roy out of the bid, but he was going full speed ahead in a manner we would all become too familiar with. To our surprise (or disgust) we did win and left Orlando thinking what a bunch of asses we were to allow that miserable Scotman to talk us into this mess!

Meetings started slowly with more socializing and beer drinking than serious planning and each month at least one member of the original pack dropped out (voluntarily or involuntarily). I must admit to promising my husband a few times that it was definitely my last meeting! I just couldn't deal with Roy anymore. Haha!

The count down started in October '86 - Roy panicked us all by announcing that we only had six months to go - shit we'll never do it. The rest is history, the meetings grew more frequent and heated sometimes but the work got done. Finally after weeks of no sleep (bad dreams of Roy chastising me for not getting things done) Interam weekend was upon us.

This is how I remember the weekend (week).

Tuesday night stuffing bags,
Wednesday night stuffing bags,
Thursday night, registration,
Friday registration and decorate venue,
Saturday decorate venue,
Sunday decorate venue,
Monday Tobago!

Between the balloons, palm leaves,
green and yellow cloth, feet, goody bags and registration forms there wasn't much more.

Was good meeting those hashers we had previously met in Orlando and the new ones too. Special thanks to Toilet Seat and Bambi for their help. To Mr.
Jackson thanks - the name has stuck!

From the pen of Mamma Aes!
Ed. Note: Mr Jackson, your bottle of rum is on the way. Better late than never.....

PERSONALITY OF THE WEEKEND

Undoubtedly one of the "characters" of the weekend was "Access Denied." Without doubt, the kind of person you either love or hate - we're making the bold assumption that somebody must love him! We thought that if we gave him a page to himself he may just stop moaning for a couple of minutes - but we're not holding our breath!! We're sure that like us, the rest of the Hashing World, can't wait for the day he organises Interam (2001? 2003?), so we can all see how it should be done. !!

THIS MAN IS OBVIOUSLY IN DESPERATE NEED OF A SHOULDER - ANY SHOULDER TO CRY ON

IT'S THAT SHORT P.I.T.A. SCOTSMAN AGAIN

Just when you thought that Interam '97 was just a bad dream, here's a reminder of the reality! Reasons for the publication delay are as follows:-

- This is Trinidad - standing excuse for everything particularly anything late!
- Organising Committee only just finished post-Interam partying.
- Put off so long, decided to make it double as Xmas Card.
- Awaiting final Internet comments from Access Denied.

As you all know, I'm no lover of the Internet, but it certainly gave us immediate reaction from those who attended - those that is who also had Internet Access, and the will/ability to use it. We're glad to report that with one or two minor exceptions (and the one major, who requires no introduction) the vast majority of comments were favourable - time and a healthy number of return visits will tell. As far as the Hosts are concerned, the Organizing Committee and POS H3 were delighted to have had you in Trinidad (albeit for a brief period of time). As far as the non hashers were concerned, the only complaints we had were:-

1) The band on Maracas Beach on Saturday night. Apparently, the lead singer thinks he's as good as Beaver Bam Bam Balls!, and he thought all the hashers would be standing in raptures. All in all a failure in communication on my part and an unfortunate waste of money.

2) The owners of the Sunday Venue who had gotten wind of the antics, sent in their spy and promptly withheld our deposit. Just as well they weren't in Orlando!

Having declined Music's request to delay the Monday run on Tobago from 2.00 p.m. to 5.00 p.m., to allow his sailors to get there, and having warned him that the crossing may be a bit more difficult than he obviously anticipated, I'm reluctant to say "I told you so". I only raise the subject to try to impress upon everyone, that yachting in the Trinidad & Tobago area and the Caribbean in general can be enjoyable and trouble-free, provided you plan properly and keep yourselves on the right side of the Immigration Authorities. I'm not suggesting for one minute that Trini Officials are incorruptible, but any suggestion that "seeing them O.K." is the only way to move about freely, just aint true. Nuffsed.

All in all a great experience - would we do it again? Of course we would - watch out for our bid presentation in Pittsburgh!!

On! On!

TPFO @Fu.com

Pittsburgh '99

The unsolicited, probably unwelcome advice for Jim "Moon" Martin, Pittsburgh H3. By now you will undoubtedly have had dozens of offers of assistance with the organisation of Interam '99 - smile, accept and ignore the whole fucking lot. They all know better than you, they are all smarter than you, and without them PH3 will never pull it off.

You've probably started off with a committee of 12 who will all happily come round to your house once a month, once a week, or every day, drink your beer, talk a whole load of shit and do absolutely fuck all. Try to spot early the four other people who will last the course, and the two who will actually do things. Right now, they're probably the ones who are saying the least!! They've also probably turned up for the meeting with a pen and a piece of paper rather than just a big mouth and an even bigger thirst.

You will hear with monotonous regularity the following statements at early committee meetings - I've given you my translations:-

"I've got this great idea" = "What I'm about to suggest is fucking impossible but I can't wait to watch you waste a lot of time, energy and money trying to do it."

"Leave this to me" = "You'll still be leaving it to me six months from now."

"Why don't we....." = "Why don't you....."

"You know what would be a great idea...." = "I'm about to suggest something that we agreed 3 meetings ago."

Having learned to cope with these assholes, you have another 6 or 7 hundred out there who also know better than you. They all of course recognise that to organise such an event for 700 people requires a degree of compromise, but they would love if you could tailor the whole event around their personal requirements e.g.

- 1) Have it in April, rather than September.
- 2) Start all the runs at 7.00 a.m. rather than 4.00 p.m.
- 3) Have the Prelewd run on the Saturday rather than the Thursday.
- 4) Have the Monday wind down run at 5.00 p.m. on the Monday 'cos Music can't sail to Pittsburgh before then.

They all of course want everything for nothing - free flights to the event, Champagne & Caviar all weekend, the Rolling Stones on Friday night, Dire Straits on Saturday, and the Spice Girls in their bedroom every night. They all want the runs to be short, long, uphill, downhill, with beer stops, water stops, gatorade stops every two hundred yards. All the Supermen want short runs (so they can screw all night) and all the Quadriplegic heart cases want ball busters (so they don't feel they're being patronised).

If all that sounds somewhat cynical, just wait until Sep '99.
